OWNERSHIP WITHOUT GOING IT ALONE

Stuart Edmunds Racing Club offers the anticipation, excitement and social connection of racehorse ownership without asking each member to buy and manage a horse independently. Officially registered as Edmunds Racing Club, it is based at Croft Farm in Stewkley and is limited to a maximum of 36 members.

The club maintains at least three horses in training with Stuart Edmunds. Following a small team gives members several stories to enjoy across the season while retaining a more personal connection than is often possible in very large mass-ownership groups. Club horses run in the registered club colours and members share the experience with a recognisable community of fellow supporters.

Regular newsletters keep members informed about the horses, their training and likely plans. Pre- and post-race reports explain expectations and performances, helping members understand the decisions made by the trainer and the realities of preparing a National Hunt horse.

A SMALL CLUB WITH REAL INVOLVEMENT

Stable visits and open days allow members and a guest to see Croft Farm, meet the horses and spend time with Stuart, Harriet and the team. On race days, the club seeks to help members feel part of the occasion through admission arrangements, meetings with connections and allocations of owners badges or hospitality where available and subject to the club terms.

Eighty per cent of net owners prize money is distributed equally among eligible members. The membership fee is £250 per month, or £2,850 for a full year paid in advance. The published terms state that there are no additional requests for payment towards keeping and training the horses during that 12-month period.

The club is intended primarily as an enjoyable ownership experience rather than a financial investment. A sponsored Jumps Club profile can be refreshed monthly with the current horse team, vacancies, race plans, results, stable-visit dates and new membership opportunities.
